

Seminar: Philosophy, Policy and Heritage

29 November, 2018

Tel Aviv University, Law Faculty, Trubowitz Building, Room 307, 9:30am

This seminar is co-hosted by the Stockholm Centre for the Ethics of War and Peace, the Open University, and The Minerva Center for Human Rights at The Law Faculty, Tel Aviv University. The seminar has two broad goals: (1) To reflect on the value of heritage, and how we might incorporate this value into the fighting of war, and (2) to discuss the relationship between theoretical research and policy-making.

Speakers:

Leora Bilsky (Tel Aviv University)

Moshe Halbertal (Hebrew University, Jerusalem and NYU)

Eliav Lieblich (Tel Aviv University)

Idit Shafran-Gittleman (Israel Democracy Institute)

Daniel Statman (University of Haifa)

The workshop is free and open to all, but places are limited. Lunch will be provided. Please register here.
